: THE ROYAL NORWEGIAN MINISTRY OF HEALTH AND CARE SERVICES

The Ministry of Health and Care Services has the overall responsibility for government policy on health and care services in Norway.

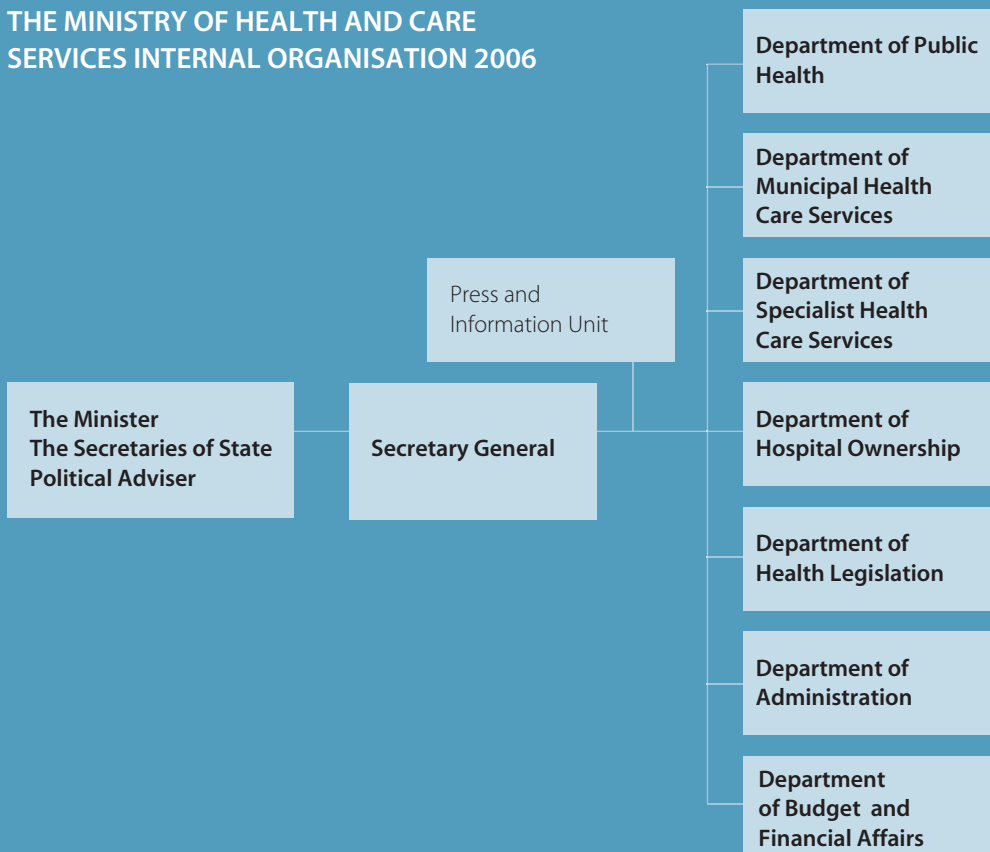

The Minister of Health and Care Services is the head of the Ministry. The minister's political staff includes state secretaries and a political adviser. The Secretary General holds the overall responsibility for the administrative management of the Ministry, including the Press and Information Unit, the Secretarial Office and the political leadership.

The Ministry of Health and Care Services comprises seven departments:

- Department of Public Health
- Department of Municipal Health Care Services
- Department of Specialist Health Care Services
- Department of Hospital Ownership
- Department of Health Legislation
- Department of Administration
- Department of Budgetary and Financial Affairs

Each of these departments is headed by a director general.

THE MINISTRY OF HEALTH AND CARE SERVICES INTERNAL ORGANISATION 2006

: FIELDS OF RESPONSIBILITY

4

The Ministry of Health and Care Services bears the main responsibility for the provision of adequate and appropriate health and care services for everyone in Norway, irrespective of geographical location and financial circumstances, and the promotion of public health.

Health and care services are regulated by extensive legislation, and government policy is implemented via annual budgetary allocations (approx. NOK 97 billion in 2006), and through government agencies, activities and undertakings.

The Ministry's responsibilities cover a wide range of areas.

The central areas are as follows:

Public health is concerned with maintaining good health in the population, reducing the risk of disease and minimising social inequalities in health. The promotion of public health focuses in particular on the prevention of the abuse of tobacco, and promoting physical activity, nutrition and food safety. Other areas are environmental health protection, protection against communicable diseases, radiation protection and associated legislation. The Ministry is also responsible for government policies on alcohol and drug abuse.

Primary health care services in the municipalities are responsible for the provision of adequate and efficient medical treatment where people live. General practitioners constitute a vital component of these services. Others are emergency clinics, medical specialists, mother and child clinics and school health services.

Specialist health care services comprise hospitals, outpatient clinics, medical specialists, ambulance services and other services.

The five regional health authorities owned by the Norwegian State through the Ministry of Health and Care Services are responsible for specialist health care services. Specialist health care services are provided at hospitals and through medical specialists and clinics in private practice. The regional health authorities are responsible for providing specialist health care services, either through hospitals owned by the regional health authorities (such hospitals are organised as health care trusts) or through a contract with private service providers.

The public dental service is a public service offered to certain groups of the population. The public authorities are responsible for equal access to dental services for all age groups and in all parts of the country.

Support to persons suffering from psychiatric disorders is provided partly through the primary services and partly via the specialist health care services. Help is also available through municipal and voluntary services not included in the regular health care services. Mental health has been a government priority since the end of the 1990s, and is being followed up by the government's escalation plan for mental health services.

Health care services for drug addicts have recently been developed and organised as a supplement to the health care service. This includes health care services with low-threshold access and rehabilitation supported by medication. The regional health authorities are responsible for providing necessary medical assistance and multidisciplinary specialist treatment for drug addicts.

Medicines must be easily accessible to the population. The Norwegian State provides financial support to patients with medical expenses above a certain limit through the blue prescription system.

Pharmaceutical services are private in Norway. The public health authorities are, however, responsible for ensuring that medical supplies are reliable and safe.

The municipalities are responsible for nursing and care services. The principal user groups are the elderly, persons with reduced functional capacity (mental or physical) and persons addicted to drugs.

: THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH

6

- Fields of Responsibility:
- Health promotion and preventive medicine
 - Health surveillance/ health registers
 - Nutrition and food safety
 - Medicines
 - Gene technology
 - Alcohol and drug dependency issues

The main tasks of the Department of Public Health are related to health promotion and preventive medicine, health surveillance and health registers, nutrition and food safety and alcohol and drug addiction issues. Its areas of responsibility include paediatric health care, such as mother and child clinics, the school health service, the prevention of unwanted and unintended pregnancies and abortions, environmental health protection, protection against contagious diseases and the prevention of HIV/AIDS, tobacco prevention and control and measures to promote increased physical activity.

The department has the main responsibility for the government's food and nutrition policy, including drinking water. The department is also responsible for legislation concerning cosmetics and legislation related to the contained use of genetically modified organisms. Furthermore, the department is responsible for general alcohol and drug policies, interministerial coordination of activities to combat drug abuse and holds a particular responsibility for the prevention of drug addiction. The department is responsible for management and supervision of the production, import and distribution of medicines, with a particular emphasis on legislative and financial measures, including the reimbursement scheme for those with medical expenses above a certain limit, the blue prescription system. Finally, the department is responsible for radiation protection and for preparing contingency plans to ensure nuclear safety.

: THE DEPARTMENT OF MUNICIPAL HEALTH CARE SERVICES

- Fields of responsibility:
- Municipal health care and social services, including nursing and care, health measures relating to drug abuse and mental health care
 - The Municipal Health Care Act and the Social Health Care Act
 - Dental health care including the Dental Health Care Act
 - Health care services for minorities
 - Alternative treatment
 - Health personnel
 - Reimbursement from the Labour and Welfare Service related to medical treatment

This department is responsible for the development of municipal policy measures for municipal health care services, nursing and care services, social care services and mental health care services within the municipalities. The Department of Municipal Health Care Services is also responsible for the implementation of policy measures in areas under the municipal health care services, such as GPs, emergency clinics, physiotherapy and midwife services. Furthermore the department is responsible for nursing and care services, the dental health care service, the training of health personnel, alternative treatment and health care services for minorities. The department is also responsible for following up financial support systems for nursing and health care services including the share paid by the users. Finally the department deals with general financial support related to health care services (the Labour and Welfare Service).

AGENCIES:

: THE DEPARTMENT OF SPECIALIST HEALTH CARE SERVICES

8

The major assignment of this department is to develop and expand specialist health care services. The department has a particular focus on quality and accessibility as well as the consequences of the demographical and medical development in society.

The department is responsible for financing specialist health care services and for the annual allocations over the central government budget to the regional health authorities. Providing satisfactory information about the specialist health care services and implementing legislation are also among this department's tasks. The department has the main responsibility for specialist health care services for people with psychiatric problems. This includes responsibility for user participation, skills enhancement and judicial issues related to the Mental Health Care Act. Implementation of the escalation plan for mental health care services (1999-2008) is an important task.

The department also holds the overall responsibility for interdisciplinary and specialist care services for drug addicts (under the reform implemented in 2004). These services include rehabilitation based on treatment using substitution medication.

The department is responsible for general habilitation and rehabilitation within the specialist health care services. This includes services for children suffering from chronic diseases and functional disorders. Specialist treatment of victims of violence and trauma is also within the scope of the department. Furthermore, the department is responsible for the approval of public as well as private hospitals and for the distribution of tasks among the regional health authorities.

AGENCIES:

- Norwegian Directorate of Health and Social Affairs (including the Norwegian Health Services Research Centre and the Norwegian Registration Authority for Health Personnel)
- Norsk Pasientskadeerstatning (independent national body for patient injury compensation) Patient Injury Compensation Board
- Norwegian Governmental Appeal Board regarding medical treatment abroad

: THE DEPARTMENT OF HOSPITAL OWNERSHIP

9

Government hospital ownership of the specialist health care services is divided among five regional health authorities. The Ministry of Health and Care Services is responsible for the administration of State ownership of the regional health authorities, and implementation of this responsibility is the principal task of the Department of Hospital Ownership.

Hospitals and other specialist health care services are organised as independent health trusts under the five regional health authorities. The five regional health authorities have ownership responsibility for the health trusts in their region and they are also responsible for the distribution of health care services in the region. The health trusts are independent legal persons with governing bodies at regional as well as local level.

The Department of Hospital Ownership is responsible for strategic, operational governance of the five regional health authorities through the active exercise of ownership. The department is responsible for preparing meetings with the regional health authorities and for following up management requirements conveyed at these meetings. The department has a particular responsibility for management requirements related to organisational and financial matters and framework conditions.

THE REGIONAL HEALTH AUTHORITIES:

- Northern Norway Regional Health Authority
